In the field, count the seconds. PHTLS: Pre-hospital life support trauma teaches and strengthens the principles of rapid assessment of a patient's injury through an orderly approach, immediate treatment of life-threatening problems as they are identified, and minimize any delays in initiating transportation to the appropriate destination. Developed by the National Association of Emergency Medicine Technicians (NAEMT) in collaboration with the American Committee of Surgeons for Traumatology (ASC-COT), PHTLS, the Ninth Edition reflects current, evidence-based knowledge and practice, and promotes critical thinking as a basis for providing quality care. Key Features and Content Updates: The fully updated PHTLS tutorial has an all-new sleek and modern design and continues to be an encyclopedia of trauma, detailing the science behind best practice injury assessment and management. The PHTLS course has more opportunities for students to participate and strengthen critical thinking skills through PowerPoint presentations, skill stations, and more than 50 patient simulations. PHTLS's main textbook, ninth Edition, will be accompanied by a new PHTLS tutorial that strengthens and refines key course concepts; it has an attractive interactive design, and it's written in a way that you feel like you're engaging in conversation, compared to listening to a lecture. Our expert team of teachers, doctors, authors and editors is currently finalizing a new guidance on the PHTLS course, which will be available in early February 2019. Credits EREES Mexico PHTLS: Pre-hospital life support injury, eighth edition of the Story of Tsa-La-Gi: Merry McSwain (daughter of Dr. Norman McSwain) Tsa-La-Gi means medicine Man in the language of the Cherokee Indian tribe. Cherokee Indians originated in Alabama, which is the home state of Dad and I. When Dad was an eagle scout in the Boy Scouts of America he learned about the Trail of Tears. Beginning in 1830, the Cherokee tribe was one of five tribes forcibly removed from the southeastern United States. More than 17,000 Cherokee Indians were forced to travel more than 1,000,000 to Oklahoma for resettlement. 2000 - 6000 Cherokee died along the way, thus the Trail of Tears. The Pope was deeply moved by this event in American history and developed an affinity for Native Americans. He always wore bear claw necklaces. Bear claw is a mascot often included in the Indian medicine bundle given to the sick or injured. In some tribes it is also worn as a necklace by warriors to bring them strength and strength. PHTLS: Pre-hospital trauma The eighth edition is the next step in the evolution of the premier global pre-traumatic trauma education program. Over three decades, PHTLS has improved the quality of trauma care and saved lives. The eighth edition of PHTLS continues PHTLS's mission to promote excellence in patient trauma management by all providers involved in providing pre-health care through global education. This legendary program was first developed by the National Association of Emergency Medicine Technicians (NAEMT) in the early 1980s in collaboration with the American Committee of Surgeons for Traumatology (ACC-COT). Its medical content is constantly reviewed and updated to reflect current knowledge and practice. PHTLS promotes critical thinking as the basis for providing quality care. It is based on the belief that DOCTORS practitioners make the best decisions on behalf of their patients when they are given a good foundation of knowledge and key principles. The eighth edition of PHTLS contains a new chapter, The Physiology of Life and Death. This chapter creates a solid understanding of the physiology of life and pathophysiology that can lead to death. This understanding is essential for the dogma if the anomalies are to be found and resolved quickly in the traumatologist. A clear approach to assessing a patient's injury in the field, seconds count. PHTLS teaches and strengthens the principles of rapid assessment of traumatology using an orderly approach, immediate treatment of life-threatening problems as they are identified and minimizing any delays in initiating transportation to the appropriate destination.
